ANNUAL MEETING HELD

Lovers of Children in Session at Young Men's Christian Association.

The adjourned annual meeting of the Free Kindergarten and Children's Aid Society took place yesterday morning at 10 o'clock in the Young Men's Christian Association hall. There was a full quorum. Mrs. Hyde called the meeting to order and said they were present for the purpose of making some changes in the by-laws, which had to be made constitutionally and ratified by the board of supervisors. The proposed changes were for the purpose of enabling the kindergartens on the other islands to come in and be affiliated with the main association.

The proposed changes were then read by Mrs. Hyde, while Mrs. Arthur Wood read the old clauses in the articles to be changed and explained wherein they differed.

After some discussion the proposed changes were put to vote and unanimously carried, everybody being in favor of it. Miss E. Carter was then appointed chairman of the committee.

The regular monthly meeting had taken place previously, at 9:30 a. m. Mrs. Hyde opened it with a prayer, after which the regular work for the morning was taken up.

Several reports were read and the expenditures for different kindergartens during the month related.

The requirements of the Fort Street School followed. They were so slight that a motion to grant them was given unanimously and with great applause. Then came a suggestion for a union of primary teachers, kindergartners and mothers, to meet together for mutual benefit. The idea is to have it partake of the nature of a social entertainment as well, where tea may be served and a chatty, informal afternoon be passed. The Association was asked to defray the expenses of printing a circular, explaining this departure, for dissemination among the teachers.

Miss Lawrence brought up the much-mooted question of vaccination. Her suggestion was that the mothers of the kindergarten children should first be seen and be asked to have their children vaccinated at home by the family physician. Failing that, the children should be vaccinated at school by Dr. Hoffmann, at the nominal price of 25 cents each. She explained, after a little discussion, that she meant those children who could afford to do so, should pay this simple fee, and that the Association might defray the expense of vaccinating the few remaining.

In response to a question covering the choice of a physician, she spoke of her preference for Dr. Hoffmann, saying the children fairly loved him, and to illustrate the odies of children and their queer likes and dislikes, told the following story, which created much amusement: It appears that the former vaccinator had a beard, and the children were very much afraid of him and created a scene when it came to vaccination time.

"For at least six months afterward whenever a man came to the school with a beard a panic ensued," said Miss Lawrence, "and the room would be emptied in no time. The children fled wildly in all directions; those who could not get out quickly enough by the door, jumped through the windows."

Miss Lawrence resumed half hesitatingly, "Mr. Frank Damon came in one day and of course he did not look at all like the doctor, but the moment they saw his beard—well, the scene that followed was very funny, I can assure you."

A ripple of laughter endorsed her words. As Dr. Hoffmann has a handsome beard, his conquering of the children's fear, proves his power beyond all question. Miss Lawrence asked for contributions of odds and ends from the different ladies' homes, which might seem rather odd to the uninitiated, but were very useful for the purpose needed. Empty spoons were called for, twine, cotton, corals, cloth, matting, boxes of all sizes and description from a pasteboard one to a wooden soapbox; even bits of rope would be welcome.

Everybody was greatly interested and an explanation was given. The tiny children are instructed how to make something useful or pretty out of what is usually termed rubbish and consigned to the ash barrel. For instance, the matting is

AN ASSAULT BY CRIMP MCCARTHY

Sailor Henlon Says He was Cut and Kicked by Him Yesterday.

Big McCarthy, the waterfront crimp, was arrested yesterday and charged with assaulting a deep sailor named Stephen Henlon. Henlon appeared at the police station shortly after noon and exhibited a deep cut over his left eye and other bruises upon his face. These he said were the results of a blow dealt him with a bottle by the big Irishman.

Henlon was shipped on Thursday by McCarthy to go aboard the Star of Russia. He slept at McCarthy's place on Queen street that night and was to have been put aboard the vessel yesterday. McCarthy forgot to feed his protegee in this time and Henlon had a gnawing pain in his stomach about noon time. He was watching a man named McIntyre paint the boat which McCarthy recently bought from Turk & Lewis. McCarthy came up to the two men and McIntyre asked for more paint. Henlon at the same time asked for something to eat, saying, "McCarthy, I'm hungry."

For answer, Henlon says, McCarthy picked up a beer bottle containing oil and giving a terrific swing brought the bottle across the seaman's head. Another blow and Henlon went down, blood streaming from the wound. While he was down McCarthy made use of his feet and kicked the prostrate man in the chest several times.

Henlon and McIntyre came to the police station and the former swore to a warrant charging the crimp with brutal assault. McCarthy was found at his lodging house and brought to the station in the patrol wagon. Before being searched he protested that he should be allowed to swear out a warrant charging the sailor with assault and battery. His bail was fixed at $50 which he procured from the bank where he has an account which is said to be rapidly increasing.

NEW HOW TO MANAGE.

She Weeps for $50 When She Wanted Only $25.

"Oh, dear," sighed the pretty caller as she viewed her friend's new bonnet, fresh from the store, "I wish my husband would allow me to buy such a lovely bonnet."

"He would, my dear, if you knew how to handle him," answered the lady of the house.

"No, it's a waste of words to try and talk with him," said the pretty caller, with another sigh. "I saw a dream of a bonnet down town the other day, and the price was just what you say you gave for yours—$25. But when I mentioned the price my husband flew into a rage and declared that $10 was every cent he would advance me to buy a bonnet with, and if I couldn't make that do I would have to do without."

"Exactly," commented the lady of the house dryly, "you can't expect any other treatment when you approach your husband like that. My husband acts just the same way whenever I ask him for money. But this creature called 'man' is very easily handled if you go about it in the right way. Now, when I saw this bonnet down town I made up my mind that I would be the happy possessor of it, so that night after supper I began to go into raptures over a bonnet that I had seen while shopping, the price of which was only $50, and then I added as an afterthought that I had quite made up my mind to buy it."

"What?" roared my husband, '$50 for a bonnet? I guess not! You'll have to put up with $25, and not a cent more do you get!'"

"As that was exactly the amount that I wanted I am afraid that the tears that I shed were somewhat forced. But I gained my point, and that was what I was after."
